What happened at the Meeting

Dr. Glenda O. Barrown, President of Temple College spoke to us today about collegiate education.

Temple Junior College was founded in 1926 in response to the need for a post secondary institution in Temple.

The College is a result of the joint efforts of civic, business, and educational leaders. In the early years, the college was operated by the public school system. Classes were held in the basement of the old Temple High School building. As the student body grew, so did the need for a permanent campus. A separate junior college district was established in 1955 enabling the college to build a new facility. The College moved to its present location in south Temple in 1957.

With an enrollment of more than 6,100 students, the College is large enough to maintain a flexible and varied program. It is, at the same time, small enough to provide students with opportunities for the development of leadership abilities. Small class size makes possible a close personal relationship between students and their instructors.

In 1996, the name of the College was changed to Temple College to reflect its role as a comprehensive college, offering transfer programs, technical education, community education, career and workforce training, and cultural activities. The college now offers day and evening classes; technical and workforce training; on-campus, online, hybrid, and web-enhanced courses; and continuing education classes.

Skeebo loses his Red Badge.

There are many that are demanding a full investigation on how Skeebo Reicher could have possibly completed his Red Badge requirements. We know that he is THE MASTER with a camera.... But loosing the Red Badge requires reading AND writing. How?
