What happened at the Meeting

Coleman Hampton, the new director of the Bell County Museum spoke to the Club today about the Museum's history.

Restored in 1991, the Bell County Museum was constructed in 1904 at a cost of $10,000. It started out life as a Carnegie Library. On the ground floor the lighter rectangles in the wood flooring show where the bookshelves once were.

The museum is the home of the "Ma" Ferguson Collection, which you can see by her photo, is definitely not a fashion line. "Ma" was the first woman to be Governor of Texas and was a Bell County native.

An interesting story from a museum staff member:
According to local legend, the citizens of Belton were so persistent in writing to Mr. Carnegie himself and not the corporation, that in order to free up his mailbox, Mr. Carnegie wrote a personal check for the amount of construction. Years later when a remodeling grant was requested the Carnegie Corporation had no record of an initial grant.
