Today, Mayor Tim Davis and City Manager Brynn Meyers spoke to TFLC about how Temple is planning for growth over the next six years as the population is expected to grow to over 100,000 by the year 2029.

Significant planning is necessary to accommodate that much growth. They discussed the strategic plan for the city of Temple, which was developed by the City Council. The vision for the City is that Temple is a place people will love to call home. The mission for the City is to provide "exceptional services without exception." The five values include commitment, innovation, integrity, accountability, and collaboration. The four primary areas of focus include high-performing organization, places and spaces, public safety, and infrastructure and utility. The focus areas are considered the priorities for the City of Temple. They established nine goals they hope to achieve over the next six years, as well as developed commitments and initiatives that provide strategies to achieve each of these goals. The plan, which outlines these things in greater detail can be found at <https://www.templetx.gov/DocumentCenter/View/28817/071119-Proposed-Business-Plan-Overview-Presentation?bidId=>
