Today, Dr. John Brinkley, spoke to the club about the work he does with Prosthetic Promises. Prosthetic Promises In His Name, a 501(c)3 non-profit organization, was founded in the fall of 2012 by John Brinkley and Chris Reiff, two prosthetic specialists from Central Texas. The pair had just come back from a mission trip to Zambia, Africa, where they helped more than a dozen people get fitted with prosthetic legs or eyes. Brinkley and Reiff were moved by the experience and decided to continue their mission work. Katie Brinkley joined the Prosthetic Promises team in 2013.

Prosthetic Promises was created to help make regular trips overseas possible to help others like those they encountered in Zambia. The pair is using their experiences from trips to Mexico and Belize, as well as Africa, to spur a new kind of mission-based project. Using their professional skills to continue to bring glory to God's kingdom.

The mission of Prosthetic Promises is two-fold: to help provide prosthetics that improve the patient's quality of life, and to use the experience to bring the word and goodness of God to those who have not yet known His love.

Thank you so much Dr. Brinkley for taking your time to speak to TFLC today! Check out the video link to Prosthetic Promises below...it's pretty cool!
